As India has rapidly scaled its clean energy sector, ReNew has emerged as one of the country's top renewable energy producers since Sumant Sinha founded it thirteen years ago. 2024 has been a landmark year for ReNew, as it became one of the fastest clean energy companies to reach the 10 GW milestone of operating clean energy assets, now making up approximately 10 per cent of India's total solar and wind power generation.

Sumant Sinha, Founder, Chairman and CEO of ReNew, said, "I'm deeply honoured to be included on the 2024 TIME100 Climate list, joining a truly inspiring group of individuals dedicated to addressing the climate crisis. India is at the forefront of the global energy transition and the government's commitment to energy security, accessibility and affordability for all motivates us to keep going ahead in this task of nation building. I am grateful to my dedicated team at ReNew who work with me to make this vision a reality."

To identify this year's individuals for the TIME100 Climate List, TIME analysed measurable and scalable achievements of businesses around the world, with particular focus on recent action.
